“ Today was hard. Waking up thinking I had to take you out and give you your medications only to see your empty spot shattered me. Just last year we would wake up and have brekkie together to go on long walks and you were the happiest of boys. I miss you. ”

“ My precious child. You were such a scoundrel and you fought hard to stick around as long as you did. 15 years with you was not enough. I hate knowing I have to remember you longer than I had you. You were in my life longer than you weren't and life isn't going to be the same without you. Coming home to empty arms and an empty spot in your corner killed me. I can't believe you're gone but you can rest now. You no longer have to worry about arthritis, medications, illness, and all the bad things of being alive on this earth. Rest east baby boy. I can't wait to bring you home again soon.
